THE VENETIAN BETRAYAL

Cotton Malone is back, the center of another contemporary international and geopolitical thriller powered by fascinating historical research. It is believed that in the lost cache of Alexander The Great, hidden away 2500 years ago, there exists a formula for a serum—a formula hidden within the body of Alexander himself. Who is looking for this lost formula? A massive commonwealth has been formed by former Soviet republics led by a woman who fashions herself as a modern day Alexander The Great. This commonwealth have created the mother of all viruses—one which could obliterate an enemy and just may be cured by the serum hidden in Alexander's body. St. Marys, GA

A FRACTION OF THE WHOLE

Certiably paranoid misanthrope Martin Dean spent his entire life analyzing absolutely everything—from the benefits of suicide to the virtues of strip clubs versus brothels. Now that he's dead, his son Jasper can fully reflect on the man who raised him in intellectual captivity, and the irony is: theirs was a grand adventure. As he recounts the events that led to his father's demise, Jasper recounts a boyhood of shocking discoveries. It's a story that takes them from the Australian bush to the cafes of bohemian Paris, from the highs of first love to the lows of rejection and failed ambitions. Sydney, Australia

THE PAINTER OF BATTLES:

A Novel

Andrés Faulques is a world-renown war photographer, retired to a tower atop Spain's Cala del Arráez, where he is painting a large mural on the inside walls and reminiscing on conversations with his missing colleague (and girlfriend). As he reflects, Faulques is unpleasantly surprised by a visitor, the brooding and disconsolate Ivo Markovic. They first met in a war-torn town in the Balkans, when Faulques photographed Markovic, then a wounded and shell-shocked student recently mobilized for the Croatian Army. Markovic has come to kill him, but not before making sure Faulques understands his story—that he is more than just a snapshot, that he is part of a tragedy-stricken, hope-deprived culture, and participant in many atrocious battles. Madrid

SEEN IT ALL AND DONE THE REST:

A Novel

When actress Josephine Evans returns to the United States from Amsterdam, she discovers a very different place than the one she left thirty years ago. She moves in temporarily with her granddaughter, Zora, who is still trying to make sense of her role in the scandal that rocked Atlanta a year ago. Josephine is delighted to find her old friend Abbie Allen Browning living just around the corner. Set in the community that is familiar to readers of Cleage's other novels. Atlanta, GA

DREAMERS OF THE DAY

Takes us behind the scenes at the 1921 Cairo Peace Conference when Winston Churchill, Lady Gertrude Bell and T.E. Lawrence himself invented the modern Middle East. Still reeling from the Great War and the Great Influenza of 1919, 40-year-old Ohio schoolteacher Agnes Shanklin has inherited just enough money to allow her to take the trip of a lifetime to Egypt and the Holy Land. Telling her own story of late-life romance, Agnes finds herself drawn into geopolitical decisions that echo in our lives to this day. ALA Midwinter Appearance. Cleveland, OH

OLIVE KITTERIDGE:

A Novel in Stories

Crosby seems to be a typical—and typically atypical—small town on the coast of Maine. Its inhabitants know each other well and are linked to each other's triumphs and adversities. In all these stories, Olive Kitteridge, now retired from being a schoolteacher, plays a leading or subsidiary role, always with her strong and convincing mixture of psychological insight and anger, compassion and deep resentments. Around her swirl such characters as a lounge singer haunted by a past love, a would-be suicide whom Olive herself dissuades without realizing she is doing so, a son tyrannized by her overbearing sensitivities, a stoic husband bound to a marriage both broken and unbroken at the same time. Brooklyn, NY

Special Comments on the Bush Administration's War on American Values

The ratings for Keith Olbermann's show Countdown have been off the charts since he started delivering his "Special Comments"—angry but impeccably reasoned polemics attacking the Bush Administration's efforts to stifle dissent against the follies of the Iraq War and the War on Terror. Now collected in one book, with an introduction and extensive headnotes, the nineteen "Special Comments" amount to a sustained indictment of the Administration and its flacks for running roughshod over Americans' rights while claiming to protect them.

SELLOUT:

The Politics of Racial Betrayal

In this concise, provocative book, in the mode of his controversial bestseller Nigger, Kennedy brilliantly and judiciously deconstructs another stigma of our racial discourse: "selling out," betraying or abandoning the interests of the black community often for personal gain—a subject of anxiety and acrimony in black America. Dedham, MA

HOMO POLITICUS:

The Strange and Barbaric Tribes of the Beltway

Deep within the forbidding land encircled by the Washington Beltway lives the tribe known as Homo Politicus. Their ways are strange, even repulsive, to civilized human beings; their arcane rites often impenetrable; their language coded and obscure; violating their complex taboos can lead to sudden, harsh and irrevocable punishment. Normal Americans have long feared Homo Politicus, with good reason. But fearless anthropologist (and Washington Post columnist) Dana Milbank has spent many years immersed in the dark heart of Washington, D.C., and has produced this indispensable portrait of a bizarre culture whose tribal ways are as hilarious as they are outrageous.

Jacob Weisberg

THE BUSH TRAGEDY

Drawing on extensive research and interviews with figures inside and out of the administration, Jacob Weisberg has crafted a portrait of George W. Bush that is balanced, insightful, and wide-ranging. With careful analyses, Weisberg offers a revealing and eye-opening assessment of Bush's deeply conflicted relationship with his father, former President George H. W. Bush, and major figures in the administration including Vice-President Dick Cheney and Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice. Weisberg traces the roots of Bush's political philosophy, taking a fresh perspective on Bush's early life and how his world-view took shape through his years as Governor of Texas through the events of 9/11 and his turbulent two terms in office. New York, NY

From perhaps the most admired public figure in American life, passionate statements on how the promise of America has been betrayed—and what we as citizens must do to reclaim our political birthright. Timely topics addressed in these speeches include the proper place of religion in public life; the mounting environmental crisis; the heedless, disastrous policies of the Bush Administration in Iraq and so many other areas; and our need to reconnect with our rich history of progressive reform as we try to move beyond the wreckage of the past few years. An introduction will sum up the collective message of these speeches and frame the issues that face us as we enter the 2008 Presidential race.

ASK FOR IT:

How Women Can Use the Power of Negotiation to Get What They Really Want

Builds on the authors' discovery that many women don't even recognize opportunities to negotiate—whether it's for a raise, a nicer office, or help around the house. In chapters built around compelling case histories, they show that nearly everything is negotiable, help women identify the goals that mean most to them, and lead them step-by-step through planning and preparation. At the negotiation stage, they offer crucial strategic advice, ways to stay in control and manage emotions, and confidence-building techniques. Above all, they show how a collaborative style can work for, not against, women, opening doors they thought were closed. Because if you never hear “no,” you're not asking enough. Pittsburgh, PA and Concord, MA
